[1] You found the NASCAR Sportsman results document! This is all the info I have of the division NASCAR tries its best to forget.

Here's how the series worked:

1. At the beginning, all cars were Winston Cup/Busch cars, no newer than 1986. At the end, most of the newest cars were from about 1989. Drivers could use almost any car, but 98% of cars were Monte Carlos, Thunderbirds, LeSabres, Grands Prix or Cutlasses. The oldest chassis I've pinpointed was from 1979, though there were no doubt older ones.
2. Drivers used two barrel carburetors and their engines had half the horsepower. They capped out at about 165, maybe 170mph.
3. Drivers used old Winston Cup superspeedway tires to save money. These tires heated up fast and gripped the track well, but also made slowing on a dime difficult. Drivers were not allowed to change tires unless one was blown.
4. Sportsman drivers never raced back to the caution. The initial start was double file until 1993-03, where they switched it to single file. Restarts were always single file.
5. To race, drivers had to secure a superspeedway racing license through the local racing schools (most drivers used either Fast Track Racing School or Buck Baker Racing School), be evaluated by NASCAR, and pass a rookie test. Past racing experience was a huge bonus but was not 100% necessary. Drivers were allowed to rent a racing school car if they paid for the rental and took financial responsibility for any damage the car incurred.

Fielding a Sportsman car cost $15,000 at the very, very least.

[93] $23000 from the main, $2000 from the LCQ

[94] Here's what I've got about the LCQ:
 30 laps, shortened to 15 by Batson's crash, was the first ever race at Charlotte under the lights, Mergard started 13th, Glanville 21st, Crider did not start the LCQ and wasn't replaced, 31 starters

Batson's lap 4 crash wiped out himself and Connell, also collected Everette, Hudspeth, and Edwards

Race ended under yellow when Metzger, Purcell, Mergard and Rector collided in the quadoval, wiping out all but Purcell, Glanville blew up on the last lap and finished 24th, Metzger apparently had his license pulled due to the crash

Terry Brooks finished 2nd but was DQ'd for an illegal carburetor, bumping in Steve Allison

[95] I know for sure that Glanville, Brooks, Metzger, Brown, Edwards, Caldwell, Mergard, Phillips, Everette, Crider, Connell, Clark and Batson ran the LCQ

[96] Crashed in Friday practice
